Chatham University Honor Code

Honor is that principle by which we at Chatham form our code of living, working and studying together. The standards of honor at Chatham require that all students act with intellectual independence, personal integrity, honesty in all relationships, and considerations for the rights and well-being of others... And this is where honor applies — in all aspects of Chatham life.

Honor Pledge

Students are asked to sign the following pledge:

Realizing the trust placed in me, I affirm my faith in individual and personal integrity, and I assume responsibility of maintaining the tenets of the Honor Code in all attendant matters.
